Advocator	Council actively represents the interests of the community to influence decisions, secure funding, and shape policies at the local, state and federal levels.
Disadvantage	Unequal access to opportunities, services or resources that leads to poorer outcomes in health or participation driven by systemic barriers, not individual choice.
Enabler	Council removes barriers and creates conditions that make it possible for individuals, groups and communities to take action, access opportunities, and achieve better outcomes.
Circular economy	A model that designs out waste, keeps materials in use for as long as possible, and regenerates natural systems, delivering environmental, economic and social benefits.
Facilitator	Council brings people and organisations together to solve shared problems, builds strong networks, and leads by example to influence better outcomes across the sector.
World Health Organization (WHO)	The United Nations agency responsible for global health leadership, including setting standards and responding to health emergencies.

Partner	Council works with state government departments, schools, sports clubs, other service deliverers in the region and Committees of Management.
Regulator	Council enforces local laws, policies and standards to protect public health, safety, amenity and the environment.
Resilient	Communities that can adapt, recover and thrive during disruptions or crises, while maintaining wellbeing and essential services.
Service Provider	Council directly delivers services to the community or contracts others to do so, ensuring quality, safety and equity in service delivery.

Message From Our Mayor

I am proud to present the Healthy, Safe and Resilient Bass Coast Plan 2025–2029.

This Plan sets out our community's shared vision for health and wellbeing and our commitment to creating the conditions where every person in Bass Coast can thrive. It recognises that good health is more than the absence of illness. It is about connection, access, safety, equity, and the ability to live a full and meaningful life no matter your age, background or circumstance.

Our 2025–2029 Plan builds on the solid foundations of previous years but goes further. It shifts more decision-making to community level. It focuses deliberately on place and partnership, and it strengthens our commitment to those who face barriers to health and wellbeing whether because of geography, disability, discrimination, housing stress, or other factors.

The themes in this Plan healthy living, safety and inclusion, equitable access, thriving young people, and the deep connection between Country and climate, reflect what our community has told us matters most. They also align with broader national and state directions, while staying grounded in the lived experience of the people who call Bass Coast home.

Council cannot do this work alone. The role we play, whether as advocate, provider, collaborator or connector, depends on strong, enduring partnerships across sectors and with our community.

Together, we are tackling long-term challenges with creativity and compassion. Whether it's reducing the impacts of cost-of-living pressures, improving digital inclusion, or designing communities that support wellbeing from the ground up this Plan gives us a clear, accountable and inclusive roadmap forward.

On behalf of Council, I thank everyone who has contributed to the development of this Plan and invite you to join us in bringing it to life.

Cr Rochelle Halstead
Mayor, Bass Coast Shire Council

Executive Summary

The Healthy, Safe and Resilient Bass Coast Plan 2025–2029 is Council's Municipal Public Health and Wellbeing Plan, developed in line with the Public Health and Wellbeing Act 2008 (Vic). It sets a clear, strategic direction for improving health, wellbeing, and equity for all who live, work and play in Bass Coast.

The Plan builds on the foundations of the 2021–2025 Plan and introduces a stronger focus on community-led, place-based and partnership-driven action. It responds to state and national health priorities, local data, and community insights across five key themes:

1. Healthy and Active Living
2. Safe and Inclusive Communities
3. Equitable Access and Social Infrastructure
4. Thriving Children and Young People
5. Country, Connection and Climate

From Strong Foundations To Future Focus

The 2021–2025 Healthy Communities Plan established a strong base by promoting collaboration, partnerships and integrated planning to improve health and wellbeing. Over the past four years new pressures have emerged, from climate impacts and cost-of-living stress to increased mental health needs and widening inequities. These challenges demand more targeted, measurable and accountable actions.

The 2025–2029 Plan responds by shifting from broad aspirations to clear outcomes and shared accountability. It embeds health and wellbeing priorities across Council's work, from infrastructure and planning to community services and environment, ensuring decisions are aligned with long-term wellbeing. This forward focus strengthens Council's ability to address complex challenges in partnership with community and service providers.

Each theme outlines Council's roles from facilitator and collaborator to service provider and advocate alongside measurable indicators of success. This ensures accountability while focusing on what Council can influence, and where partnership is essential.

The Plan includes a Year 1 Action Plan and will be implemented through ongoing listening, co-design, delivery and evaluation. Council will report annually and review the Plan in four years to ensure it remains responsive to emerging challenges like cost-of-living, digital equity and climate resilience.

By embedding collaboration, human-centred design and cultural safety, the Plan aims to deliver long-term, system-level improvements particularly for those facing health inequities. It also aligns with Council's broader planning ecosystem, including the Council Plan, Disability Action Plan, Active Bass Coast Plan, Climate Change Action Plan and Municipal Emergency Management Plan.

This is not just a plan for Council, but a shared commitment to creating the conditions for everyone in Bass Coast to live well.

Our Integrated Planning And Reporting Framework

Bass Coast Shire Council takes an integrated approach to strategic planning one that connects community needs, long-term priorities and service delivery across all levels of the organisation. At the centre of this approach is the Council Plan, which sets the overarching direction and guides how resources are allocated, how advocacy is prioritised, and how outcomes are delivered through a network of aligned strategies.

This includes:

- The Healthy, Safe and Resilient Bass Coast Plan, which delivers on Council's legislative obligations and local priorities for community health and wellbeing.
- The Disability Action Plan, which drives equity, access and inclusion across Council's policies, services and built environment.
- A suite of supporting documents, including the Financial Plan, Asset Plan, and Climate Action Strategy, which provide the tools and frameworks to implement and resource Council's strategic intent.

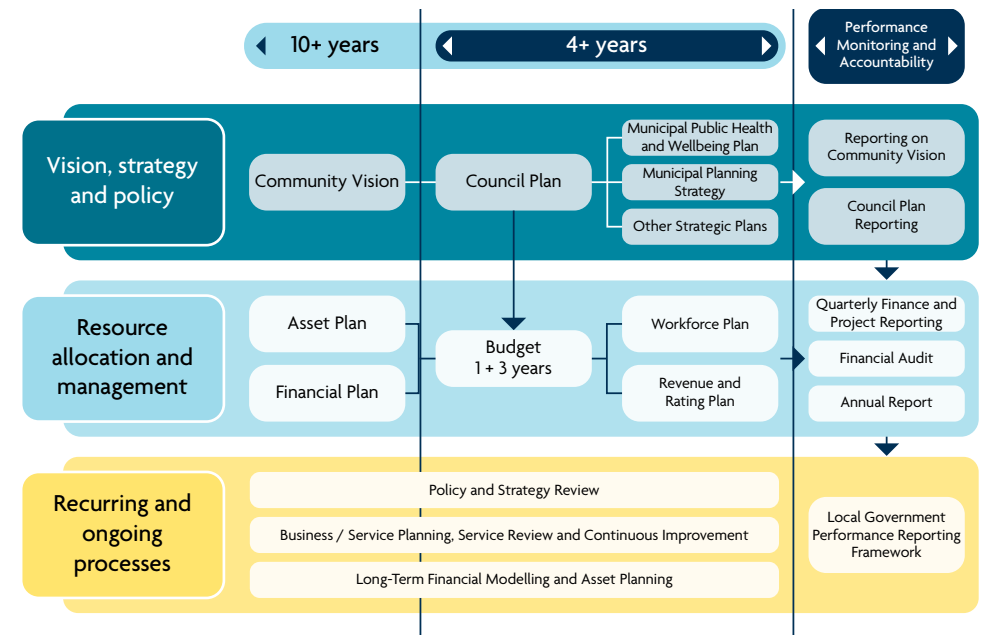

These plans are not developed in isolation. They are connected through shared objectives, co-designed monitoring and evaluation tools, and a unified delivery framework that ensures collective impact. Each plan aligns directly to one or more priorities within the Council Plan, enabling a whole-of-Council approach that is focused, measurable and community-driven.

Under the Public Health and Wellbeing Act 2008, all Victorian councils must prepare a four-year Municipal Public Health and Wellbeing Plan (MPHWP) within 12 months of a general election. In Bass Coast, this requirement is fulfilled through the Healthy, Safe and Resilient Bass Coast Plan, which supports Council to anticipate risks, direct investment and deliver targeted strategies that improve health outcomes across our communities.

Council's functions under the Act include:

- Creating environments that support healthier choices and empower individuals and communities to improve their wellbeing.
- Leading local health planning and implementing targeted policies and programs to improve public health outcomes.
- Partnering with local organisations and service providers to strengthen community health and wellbeing through shared action

Integrated Planning And Reporting Framework

Our Legislative Responsibility

The Healthy, Safe and Resilient Bass Coast Plan is Council's Municipal Public Health and Wellbeing Plan, developed under the Public Health and Wellbeing Act 2008 (Vic). It aligns with international, national, state and local health strategies and outlines Council's strategic direction for improving health, wellbeing and equity across our community.

Over the next four years, the Plan will guide our work in social planning, community development and service delivery. It reflects state health priorities, is informed by local data, and is shaped by the voices of our communities and partners.

The Plan meets Council's legislative obligations and provides a shared framework for action. It identifies opportunities to better support people facing poorer health outcomes and ensures alignment with both the Council Plan and the Victorian Public Health and Wellbeing Plan.

Council has a unique and critical role in health prevention and promotion. Through our policies and actions, we help shape the physical, social, economic and natural environments that influence the health of people living in Bass Coast.

We support preventative health through safe, walkable neighbourhoods, improved infrastructure and services, inclusive community programs, strong partnerships, and proactive responses to emerging health risks, including climate change.

The Public Health and Wellbeing Act 2008 describes Council’s functions to protect, improve and promote public health and wellbeing by:

- Creating healthy environments that support people to live well and make healthier choices.
- Leading local health planning by identifying community needs and setting health and wellbeing goals.
- Developing and delivering public health policies and programs focused on prevention and wellbeing.

- Supporting local agencies, including schools, health services, emergency services, and community organisations.
- Coordinating and providing immunisation services for children living or studying in the municipality.

These actions help prevent health problems before they start. Our role is to make sure the community stays healthy.

Working Together For Collective Impact

Council is not a direct provider of health services, but we play a vital role in creating the conditions for positive health outcomes across Bass Coast.

We do this by enabling inclusive planning, facilitating partnerships, advocating for community needs, and supporting collaboration between service providers, funders and community groups. Council is one player in a broad ecosystem of services and supports. Our impact relies on respectful partnerships with health providers, government agencies, and community groups who each bring expertise, insight and resources to the table.

Increasing positive health outcomes of our community relies on strong, respectful partnerships across government, non-government, and community sectors. Council recognises that no single organisation can address the complex, interconnected drivers of disadvantage and wellbeing alone. By working alongside our partners as equals we combine knowledge, resources, and lived experience to achieve better outcomes for our community.

Partnerships strengthen our collective ability to address the full spectrum of health and wellbeing housing, infrastructure, social connection, education, economic opportunity, and the environment. A strong example is our Housing Strategy, developed through collaboration with those who bring expertise in housing, infrastructure and community support. It focuses on areas where infrastructure supports growth and wellbeing, while addressing social and economic challenges.

This collaborative approach reflects our commitment to understanding the ways that health, housing, education, income, culture and environment intersect. We recognise that some people face greater barriers to wellbeing, and we are committed to shaping responses that are inclusive, equitable and effective.

At its core, this Plan champions partnership as the foundation for a healthier, safer and more connected Bass Coast, where shared knowledge, mutual trust and aligned action leading to healthier communities.

The Communities We Are Planning For

Bass Coast is a thriving and growing community, known for its beaches, friendly towns and strong sense of connection. As one of Victoria's fastest-growing regions, we are shaping a future where everyone has the opportunity to live well, recognising that growth brings both opportunities and challenges for health and wellbeing.

Our population is both growing and ageing. This increases demand for health care, housing, mobility and social connection. At the same time, young people and working-age residents are navigating challenges around education, employment, housing affordability and mental health. These issues impact people differently depending on their life stage. Our Plan is grounded in this understanding.

We recognise health is a journey and is influenced by age, ability, culture, income, and place. This Plan considers the distinct needs of children, young people, adults and older residents, ensuring people can stay active, connected and well throughout their lives.

We are also proudly diverse. Our community includes people from a range of cultures, abilities and backgrounds who enrich our region. We acknowledge the Bunurong people as Traditional Owners and are committed to learning from and walking alongside First Nations communities. Inclusive, accessible services are vital to ensure everyone has the opportunity to thrive.

Tourism is central to our identity and economy, attracting 3.25 million visitors each year. While it brings vibrancy and opportunity, it also places pressure on housing, infrastructure and local services, particularly in peak periods.

Being healthy is about more than health care. It's about feeling safe, connected, active and supported. It means having access to healthy food, transport, welcoming public spaces, and opportunities to engage in community life.

Bass Coast is changing. The Healty, Safe and Resiliant Bass Coast Plan 2025-2029 plan ensures we grow in a way that places people's health, wellbeing and inclusion at the centre no matter who you are, where you live, or your circumstances.

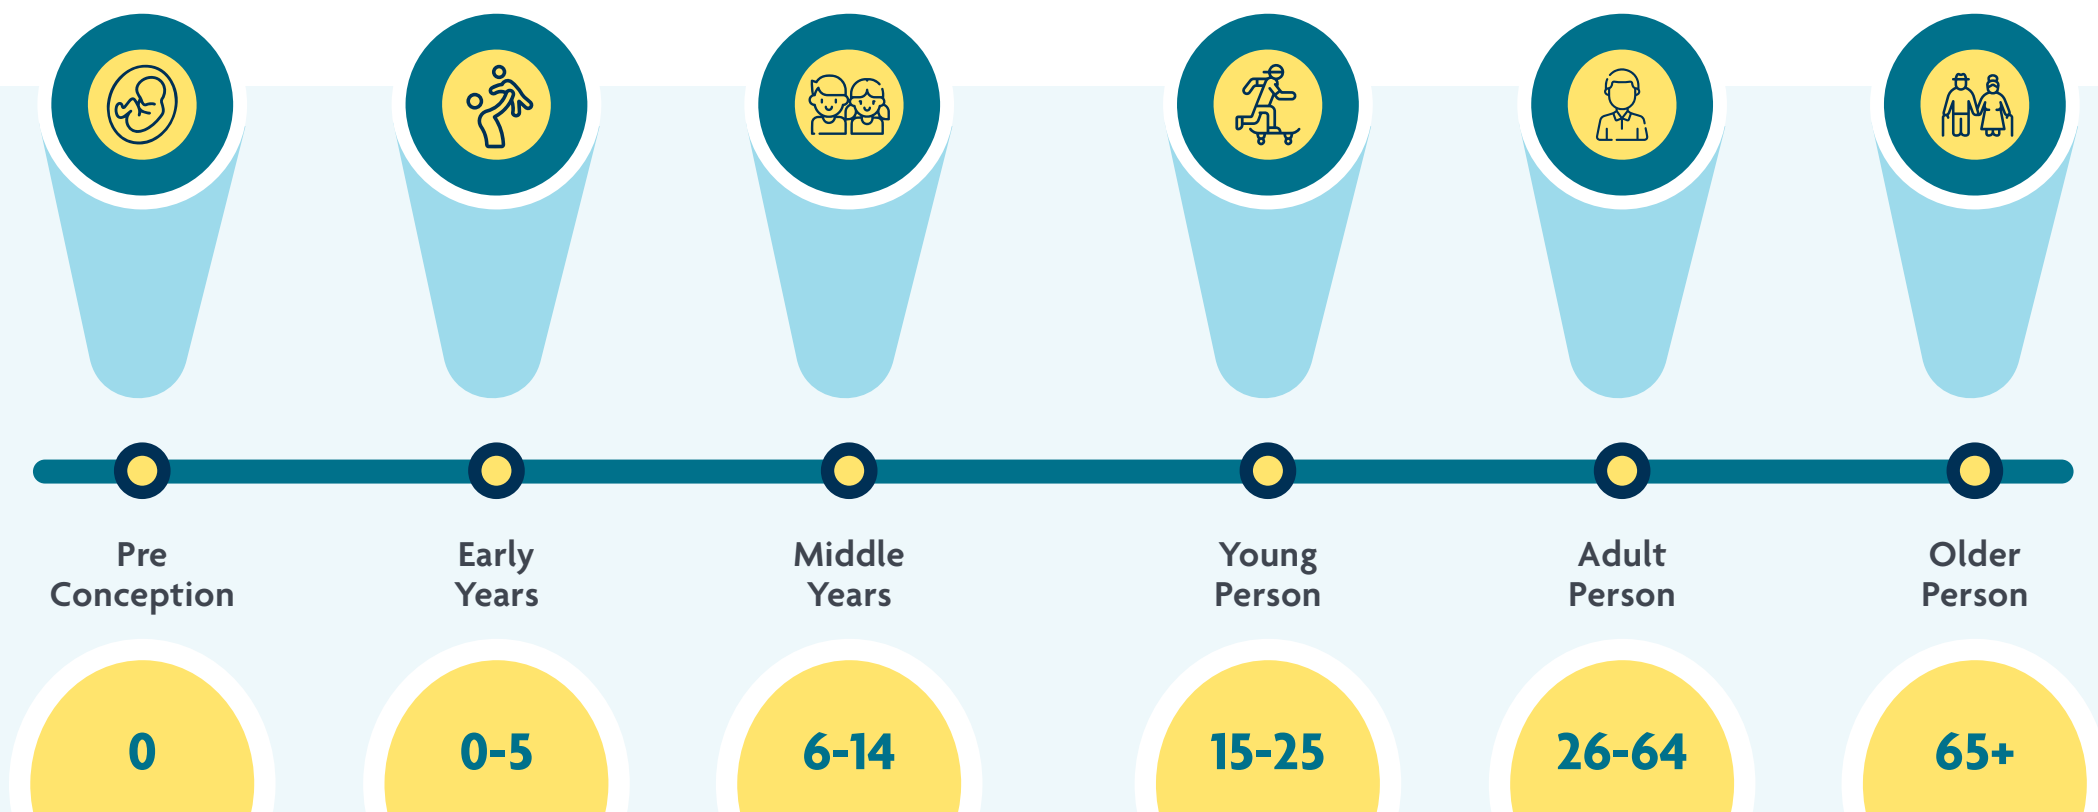

Life Course Approach

Health needs change as people move through different stages of life. A life course approach recognises these transitions and focuses on providing the right supports at the right time, from early childhood through to older age. This perspective helps ensure prevention and early intervention are prioritised, and that services and opportunities remain accessible as people's circumstances evolve. By embedding this approach across the Plan, Council and its partners can respond to key milestones in people's lives and strengthen wellbeing at every stage

Bass Coast's approach ensures our actions are tailored to those needs:

Early Years

Recent data from the 2024 Australian Early Development Census shows more young children are starting life with challenges in physical health, emotional maturity and social connection. These early vulnerabilities can shape a child's lifelong wellbeing, learning and opportunities.

In Bass Coast, it's not always easy for families to access the right support at the right time. Local access to services like paediatrics, allied health and specialist programs is limited. Access to Maternal and Child Health services through Bass Coast Health plays a vital role in supporting families, but there's more to do to ensure every child gets the help they need when it matters most.

Early years services are more than health checks, they help build connection, confidence and community. By focusing on early intervention and improving access to health, development and education supports, we can give every child in Bass Coast the best possible start to grow, learn and thrive.

Young People

Young people are an important part of Bass Coast's future, but many face barriers that can impact their health, wellbeing and sense of belonging. Gippsland health data shows rising rates of psychological distress and declining emotional wellbeing among school-aged children and teens.

Challenges such as vaping, limited transport, and a lack of clear pathways to education and local careers narrow young people's choices and influence how they see their future in Bass Coast. Limited tertiary education and career pathways can leave young people uncertain about their future in Bass Coast and more likely to look elsewhere for opportunities.

Creating safe, inclusive environments, both at school and in the communities, is critical. When young people feel connected, supported and have access to services, education and opportunities to belong, it strengthens wellbeing and builds resilience for the future. Equitable access during these years can shape lifelong health outcomes.

Middle Years

Children aged 6 to 14 known as the middle years go through important physical, emotional and social changes that shape who they are and how they see the world. This stage plays a key role in building confidence, resilience, and healthy habits that can influence wellbeing into adulthood. While often overlooked in policy and programs, the middle years are a powerful time for early support. Positive peer relationships, inclusive environments and programs delivered in schools and communities, especially around key life transitions, can help prevent future mental health challenges and support children to thrive.

Adults

Many working-age adults in Bass Coast are balancing the pressures of work, caring responsibilities, rising living costs and limited access to timely healthcare. These daily challenges can make it harder for people to prioritise their health and wellbeing. Across Gippsland, data shows increasing rates of anxiety, depression and psychological distress among this age group.

Reduced physical activity, financial stress and delayed healthcare contribute to a growing risk of chronic disease, while some turn to unhealthy coping strategies, such as alcohol use. These pressures often compound over time, further impacting both mental and physical health.

Access to affordable mental health services, general healthcare and opportunities to stay active, connected and involved in community life is critical. Low-cost or no-cost activities, such as walking groups, community events, open spaces and recreation programs, play a vital role in helping people maintain their health, build social connections and manage life's pressures.

Inclusive, accessible social infrastructure and health promotion activities help create environments where working-age adults can stay well, feel connected and build resilience. Supporting access to these opportunities is key to improving wellbeing and preventing poor health outcomes in our community.

Older Adults

Bass Coast's ageing population is growing faster than the state average, bringing increased demand for support with chronic disease, dementia, and reduced mobility. As more residents over 70 require help with daily tasks, the risk of social isolation and disconnection grows. Access to age-friendly spaces, preventative health care, and inclusive programs is essential for supporting older people to stay active, independent and connected to their communities.

What Our Communities Told Us

Bass Coast Shire Council undertook a broad and inclusive engagement process to strengthen our understanding of the current health barriers and enablers. We sought to reach diverse communities and to explore more deeply some of the issues which emerge from our population health profile.

What the community told us about their real-life experiences has helped shape and set key themes. Residents shared their experiences and priorities through engagement sessions and surveys.

Bass Coast has low crime rates, but many residents feel unsafe especially in isolated or poorly lit areas.

Safe spaces must be inclusive especially for women, neurodiverse individuals, and LGBTIQ+ communities.

Communities want more in-person support, especially for LGBTIQ+ and neurodiverse youth.

We need more accessible, inclusive, and smoke-free spaces that support movement, connection, and wellbeing.

Transport, housing stress, and service gaps make it hard for the community to access support.

People face gaps in mental health, housing, healthy eating, and transport. We need better coordination and access.

Our engagement sought input from people across all life stages, locations and backgrounds. Children and young people, people living with disability, older adults, First Nations people, culturally diverse residents and LGBTQIA+ community members shared their experiences, insights and ideas to help shape this Plan and its key themes.

Safety

Creating safer, more inclusive environments is a key priority. While Bass Coast has relatively low crime rates, many residents perceive safety concerns to be higher especially in poorly lit or isolated areas. These perceptions can significantly affect how people feel in and move through their community. Concerns have been raised about discrimination and unwelcoming spaces, especially for women, neurodiverse individuals, and LGBTQIA+ communities. Accessible parking, safe youth activities, and safe spaces for vulnerable groups, including those navigating family violence is vital. Supporting older adults to rebuild social confidence post-COVID is also an important focus.

Services

Timely and equitable access to services especially health, mental health, and social supports remains a challenge across Bass Coast. Transport limitations, housing insecurity, and service gaps affect older adults, young people, and marginalised groups. There's a need for stronger face-to-face support, particularly for neurodiverse and LGBTQIA+ youth, and better promotion of existing services. Communities value positive service experiences and call for more inclusive, affordable options for staying active, learning, and participating in community life. Supporting literacy, wellbeing education, and non-competitive recreation are key to long-term health outcomes.

Spaces

Bass Coast's natural assets beaches, parks, and trails are deeply valued for their role in promoting physical and mental wellbeing. However, community feedback highlights a need for more inclusive, accessible and safe public spaces. Inadequate infrastructure, limited mobility access, and poor lighting create barriers, particularly for youth, people with disability, and those requiring safe environments for physical activity or family emergencies. There is also growing demand for inclusive facilities (e.g. breastfeeding spaces, gyms for LGBTQIA+ and neurodiverse people), smoke-free events, and spaces that support social connection and hobbies.

Service Gaps And Barriers

While many services exist, barriers to access remain. These include limited support for older adults and people with disability, gaps in mental health and healthy eating services, and a lack of affordable housing and crisis accommodation. Barriers to transport, financial constraints, cultural stigma, and fragmented service coordination further restrict participation. Youth and education providers are calling for better support, especially in transitions, life skills, and after-hours access. A more inclusive, coordinated system with simplified referral pathways and improved service promotion is critical.

What the Community Wants to See

Local people shared great ideas for making Bass Coast healthier, more connected and easier to live in.

Here's what they suggested:

- More free and low-cost outdoor activities like walking groups to stay active and meet others.
- Safe and welcoming community spaces that include everyone, especially people who often feel left out.
- Confidence-building programs like cooking, mental health support and fitness classes to help people feel good.

- Better paths, lighting and access so it's easier and safer to get around especially for people using mobility aids.
- Clear and inclusive signage that helps everyone feel safe and like they belong.
- Easier ways to get help by making sure services talk to each other and know where to refer people.
- One central website or app where people can find local activities, services, parks and events.

- Support for access to healthy food and ways to reduce food waste in the community.
- More places open after hours so people can meet, relax or access support when they need it.
- Increased access to public transport central to their health, wellbeing and ability to stay connected.

We analysed the information to uncover shared strengths, needs and challenges across our community. These formed the basis of our draft key themes, which were tested with local service providers, community organisations and government partners.

We also heard strong concern about gambling harm, with calls for increased awareness and prevention. Community members raised the need for vaping and smoke-free expectations at Council events to better support health and safety. In addition, people consistently highlighted the importance of everyday infrastructure such as roads, footpaths, lighting and public toilets as being Together, we explored what the data and lived experience were telling us and identified where we could have the greatest collective impact. This helped shape shared priorities and lays the groundwork for stronger collaboration and better health and wellbeing outcomes for Bass Coast.

The New Plan

Our new Plan looks ahead with a long-term focus on creating lasting health and wellbeing outcomes.

We recognise that meaningful change often takes 10–12 years to show in population data, so this Plan lays the groundwork for those shifts by strengthening foundations now.

Taking a life course approach, the Plan acknowledges that people’s needs evolve from early childhood through to older age, and that timely access to the right supports is critical. This perspective ensures that actions respond to key milestones and transitions across the lifespan, supporting people to live well and stay connected at every stage of life.

The Plan also sets the direction for how Council will work with partners and the community to address the most pressing challenges, while building resilience and opportunities for the future.

Key Themes

These themes reflect what we heard, what we know, and where we're heading. Each is informed by lived experience, guided by inclusion, and underpinned by equity.

Together, the key themes recognise both the strengths and needs of our community. They reflect our role and acknowledge the barriers people face in achieving positive health outcomes at every stage of life. Whether that's accessing services, feeling safe and connected, or maintaining health and wellbeing, these themes are designed to work together, supporting our vision of a healthy, safe and resilient Bass Coast.

While each has a distinct focus, they all contribute to improving equity, strengthening connection, and creating environments where communities can thrive.

Our success measures are practical and reflect Council's unique role in each area. Not every key theme requires Council to act in the same way, sometimes we enable, sometimes we facilitate or advocate, and in some areas, we deliver services directly.

Across all key themes, we also play an important role as an information provider, identifying local gaps, sharing insights with partners, and ensuring communities needs are clearly understood. This role varies depending on the nature of the challenge and the partnerships already in place. Our monitoring focuses on what Council can influence through our policies, services, partnerships, information sharing and advocacy.

Healthy And Active Living

Helping our community stay physically and mentally well at every stage of their life.

Council supports healthy, active living by creating environments that make it easier to stay active, eat well and maintain mental wellbeing. Through partnerships, programs, infrastructure and advocacy, we make healthy choices part of everyday life and reduce preventable health issues. Community consultation highlighted mental health, smoking and vaping as key priorities for the future.

15% of adults in Bass Coast do not meet physical activity guidelines.

12% of children in their first year of school are not physically on track.

13% of adults do no physical activity at all.

38% of residents say walking is their most popular form of physical activity.

Ensuring people can reach the essential services they need – when and where they need them.

Making it easier for everyone to participate in community life regardless of ability, background or circumstance is at the heart of equitable access. Council plays a key role in reducing barriers through inclusive planning, accessible infrastructure, advocacy and partnerships that centre community needs.

This focus is strongly aligned with our Disability Action Plan (DAP), which guides how we embed universal design and equity principles across Council services and projects. Together, the Healthy, Safe and Resilient Bass Coast Plan and the DAP reinforce our shared commitment to creating spaces and systems where all people feel welcome, supported and able to thrive.

Our contribution to access includes a combination of roles enabling inclusive policy and design, collaborating on shared infrastructure projects, regulating public health and access standards, and advocating for improved transport, housing and affordability. These roles are reported through measurable outcomes like increased accessibility in built environments, compliance data, collaborative project delivery, and successful advocacy for better access across the Shire.

Putting Our Key Themes Into Action

Our 4-year plan takes a staged and strategic approach to improving communities' health and resilience outcomes. We know that lasting change happens over time not through one-off programs, but through deep listening, practical action, and strong partnerships that build capacity and connection.

We will bring this plan to life through a continuous cycle of listening, co-design, action and evaluation, building each year on what matters most to our communities. Our implementation approach is grounded in ongoing engagement, not just at a single point in time but throughout the life of the plan. This ensures our actions are shaped by lived experience, shared expertise and practical insights from the people who live, work and play in Bass Coast.

Ongoing community engagement

it's how we work in the Bass Coast Shire

Evaluation

Providing transparency to outcomes and reviewing our actions with community will help us build trust and strengthen how we work together.

Informing

Sharing data and information with the community for an informed conversation. We seek feedback and ideas on the challenges, providing current information to assist evidence based discussions.

Consulting

Community tells us their stories to support and benefit our research, design, actions and evaluation of efforts. We encourage people to advocate based on their experience living in the community.

Involving

Community knowledge, skills and abilities enhance the way we all do things. Applying a strengths based approach, we aim to build from what we have.

Partnership

Through mutual respect we work together -Community members, Council and other stakeholders/partners to achieve better outcomes.

Co-Design

Community, our partners and Council are involved in design together to get it right.

How We Will Deliver The Plan Over Four Years

The four-year Plan sets the direction. The Annual Action Plan will translate this into specific deliverables, partners and measurable outcomes that respond to community feedback. Each year, new actions will reflect emerging needs raised through engagement, data and lived experience.

Year 1:

Explore and Set Key Actions

We will deepen our understanding of local needs, building on what we already know and listening closely to what's changing

This includes:

- Reviewing existing work aligned to each key theme
- Continuing delivery of core Council services and programs
- Identifying what matters most through engagement and data
- Mapping and planning collaborative projects with key partners
- Transitioning relevant Council-led initiatives to community leadership (where appropriate) to build program sustainability.

Year 2:

Consolidate Key Actions and Co-Design Solutions

With shared priorities identified, we'll move into co-design and early implementation.

This includes:

- Collaborating with partners and community members to design inclusive, locally relevant projects
- Co-designing and early implementation of value-added initiatives across key themes
- Continuing delivery of core Council services and programs

Year 3:

Deliver and Consolidate

Year 3 is focused on delivery and building momentum.

This includes:

- Rolling out key projects and programs
- Strengthening partnerships and refining approaches
- Embedding inclusive design and accessibility principles across initiatives
- Beginning to evaluate impact to inform future work

Year 4:

Reflect and Build for the Future

In the final year of the plan, we will reflect on what's worked, what we've learned, and look ahead.

This includes:

- Consolidating successful projects
- Capturing good practice and creating 'blueprints' for the next planning cycle
- Engaging community in reviewing outcomes and setting new directions

Throughout all four years, we will continue delivering core Council services across each of the key themes. Our commitment is to ensure business-as-usual continues while also driving innovation and long-term change.

In line with the Public Health and Wellbeing Act 2008 (Vic), this Plan will undergo a formal review at the end of its four-year cycle. We will provide annual updates to Council, the communities and partners on how this plan is making a difference by sharing progress, learnings, and where we're heading next.

Implementation Risks And Mitigation

While this Plan sets out an ambitious and long-term vision, we acknowledge there are key risks that could impact delivery.

These include:

- Workforce limitations across Council, health services, and community organisations
- Funding constraints that may affect the scale and pace of delivery
- Digital inequity, limiting access to services and engagement opportunities

- Structural and systemic barriers, including service fragmentation and policy misalignment
- Limited access to timely data, which may impact evidence-based decision making

To mitigate these risks, we will embed agile project design, monitor delivery through annual evaluations, strengthen partnerships to share capability, and prioritise annual actions that improve equity and long-term system resilience.

Focusing On The Future

This Plan sets a clear direction for the next four years while laying the foundation for long-term change.

We recognise the expanding role of digital health, data and technology in how people access services, connect with community and maintain wellbeing. Embracing innovation through telehealth, digital platforms and AI-informed planning will future-proof our work and keep us responsive to emerging needs.

How We'll Keep The Plan Alive

Implementation will follow a deliberate, staged approach guided by best practice:

1. Engage stakeholders

Bringing together partners, services and communities

2. Communicate the scope

Clarifying the focus and shared vision

3. Use our evaluation framework

Anchoring our approach in what matters

4. Collect and share the data

Monitoring change and surfacing insights

5. Analyse, consult, and establish outcomes

Turning evidence into direction

6. Share findings and determine next steps

Reflecting, reporting and adapting

Monitoring Our Progress

Monitoring progress is central to bringing this Plan to life. Each year we will assess how our work across the five key themes is making a difference, with results reported to Council, partners and the community. These reports will highlight progress, share insights and identify opportunities to strengthen impact.

This annual reporting meets obligations under the Public Health and Wellbeing Act 2008 and aligns with Council's Integrated Planning and Reporting Framework. It ensures accountability, but more importantly, it helps us learn in real time and adapt to emerging needs.

While population-level outcomes may take a decade or more to show, we are committed to tracking early signs of change. These will include measurable indicators as well as community stories that reflect lived experience and real impact. Each year we will update our action plans and local profile to ensure the Plan remains relevant and responsive.

The future of Bass Coast is being shaped now. Through this Plan we commit to actions that build stronger, healthier and more connected communities, not just today but for generations to come.

With courage, respect and partnership, we will create a Bass Coast where everyone belongs and can thrive.
